Construct a hazard rate model of couples deciding when to retire. You do not need a model of optimizing behavior, but your model does need to flexibly allow for dependence in decisions between the husband and the wife. How might you separately identify state dependence from unobserved heterogeneity?